About the Workshop

Psychosocial Hazards in the workplace are those you can't see or touch, but can have a significant impact on all individuals at the workplace. How do you support individuals to remain safe in the work environment when outside influences are causing their attention to be elsewhere? What about when conflict in or outside the workplace creates poor working conditions? How do you address workers who are struggling with stress and their choice of coping methods?

In this workshop, we will look at these and other circumstances that can lead to hazardous working conditions and some of the strategies managers and supervisors can use to identify and address these situations to create a more positive and productive work environment.

This workshop will be of particular interest to those in managerial, supervisory, or leadership roles, including senior staff, directors, board/commission Chairs, etc.

About our presenter

Wendy Bennett is the Executive Director for AgSafe Agriculture Association and has been a Health and Safety Professional for more than 25 years. She serves as a Director on two Boards whose organizations' focus is Agricultural Safety and Health both nationally and internationally. Wendy believes incorporating physical and psychological safety into daily operations is the key to reducing injuries and illness.

Wendy completed her undergrad in psychology and sociology, earned her MBA in 2018 and is finishing her Certificate in Psychological Health and Safety. She loves to share her knowledge and experience with others, teaching at both the University of Fredericton and BCIT. She volunteers with Special Olympics and is active in the gym, on the water and on the slopes.
