11:00 a.m. – Noon PST

Via Zoom

Presented by

Aaron Goertzen, CFA
Senior Economist

BMO Capital Markets

About the Workshop

Aaron Goertzen discusses the outlook for growth, the labour market, interest rates, and the loonie and considers key implications for the Canadian agriculture sector.

About our presenter

Aaron contributes to a diverse cross-section of activities within the Economics department. His coverage of the North American agri-food industry is widely distributed to clients and the media, while his agricultural forecasts appear in each issue of The Goods, the department's monthly commodity price publication. Aaron also contributes to the department's country risk program, reporting on economic and political risk across a wide range of jurisdictions. He also plays a central role developing macroeconomic scenarios for the bank's stress testing and financial reporting activities.

Prior to joining BMO, Aaron was an economist in the Economic Analysis and Forecasting Division at the Department of Finance Canada.

Aaron joined BMO's economics department in 2012. He holds an MA in Economics from the University of Toronto and a CFA charter.
