About the Workshop

Global agriculture markets remain uncertain in 2023. The commodity super cycle is correct as central banks around the world raise rates to battle inflation. Weather patterns are shifting as well. War persists. And global protein supplies are expected to remain tight. This will be an “around the world look” at global agriculture markets into 2023.

About our presenter

Brett Stuart is the President of Global AgriTrends. The firm was organized in 2006 and provides global market research, analysis and forecasting to a variety of clients around the world. He was formerly the lead economist for the U.S. Meat Export Federation. He has conducted numerous research and analysis projects in the global meat trade area as well as advising government representatives on international protein trade issues. Mr. Stuart has conducted on-the-ground agriculture industry research for a variety of clients on six continents.

Brett was raised on a cattle ranch operating in Utah and Wyoming and has previously worked as a controller in the agriculture industry.

He received an undergraduate degree in accounting at Utah State University and a Master of Business Administration degree from the University of Nebraska.

He and his wife Amanda live with their 5 kids on a farm near Preston, Idaho.
