About the Workshop

In the past year, organizations and companies were faced with a perfect storm of major changes in their external environments, big changes in how they do their work, and a need for making important decisions surrounded by an ocean of uncertainty.

In this presentation we will look at good principles for leaders – new or existing Board members, business owners, and all decision makers in management roles – to make Good Decisions during Uncertain Times.

About our presenters

Eben Louw is an assurance partner with MNP, LLP in Abbotsford, working with clients in a number of industries, including agriculture and food and beverage processing. He has done strategic planning work with agricultural and commercial organizations throughout Canada, and has helped many large and small organizations with their long-term strategy, governance and business succession.

Eben has a Masters Degree in Strategic Foresight.

Dominic Tilbury is a senior manager in MNP's agriculture niche. Dominic works closely with family farm businesses and industry organizations on a variety of issues ranging from planning and budgeting, tax and accounting compliance, assurance, succession, and risk management programs.

Dominic graduated from Simon Fraser University, joined MNP in 2012, and obtained his Chartered Professional Accountant (CPA, CGA) designation in 2015.
