About the Workshop

While transparency is critically important for boards to keep the confidence of their stakeholders, some discussions need to be kept confidential to protect your organization, your members or clients, and stakeholders. During this workshop, we'll talk about how to navigate confidentiality with integrity, including:

- the difference between “confidentiality” and “secrecy”
- how to determine who gets to be “in-the-know” for confidential information
- how “in camera” or “executive session” meetings work
- some tips for using confidential sessions more effectively
- an introduction to what you need to know as public sector board members under the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act.

About our presenter

Christopher Girdoat [pronounced JEE-row-dat] is a board governance consultant and meeting facilitator with over a decade of experience in board governance and operations management in the non-profit and retail sectors. When he's not consulting, he's the Executive Director of the Capilano Students' Union on the beautiful North Shore.
